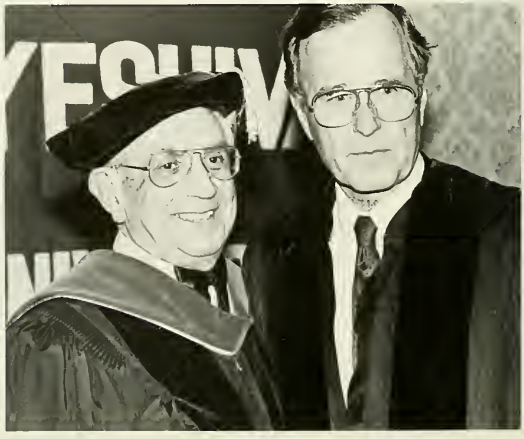
MASMID 1988

Yeshiva University

This year's MASMID embodies for many of us the final real connection between ourselves and Yeshiva College as we enroll in graduate schools or venture into the professional world. Yet, as we sigh our relief, there remains behind a large, dedicated body of faculty and administrative personnel who have chosen to devote their lives and energies to this college, our alma mater.

In salute to those stalwarts of Yeshiva, MASMID '88 is dedicated to two of the most solid pillars of this institution: Rabbi Israel Miller and Rabbi Manfred Fulda.



Rabbi Miller, Senior Vice President of Yeshiva University, is this year celebrating the 50th anniversary of his graduation from Yeshiva College and a lifetime of dedication to the University and its students since then. He is an outstanding figure in the college and in the greater Jewish community.

Rabbi Fulda, Senior Rebbe in JSS, graduated from the University 36 years ago and has since inspired countless students to achieve great heights in all of their endeavors. It is no coincidence that he has an unparalleled following among his Talmidim as well as the Jewish community at large.

It is at such a time when many are thinking what Yeshiva University can do for us that we may ponder how these men instead found what they could do for Yeshiva University.

Boiling winds whip seas to raging furies
Tearing rocks from cliffsides grasping reaches;
Hurls them crashing through breaking flurries,
But with same advancing steps clean fouled stretches.
Early man angered, confused by other's hate,
Picks his pebbles, his weapons of anguished weight.
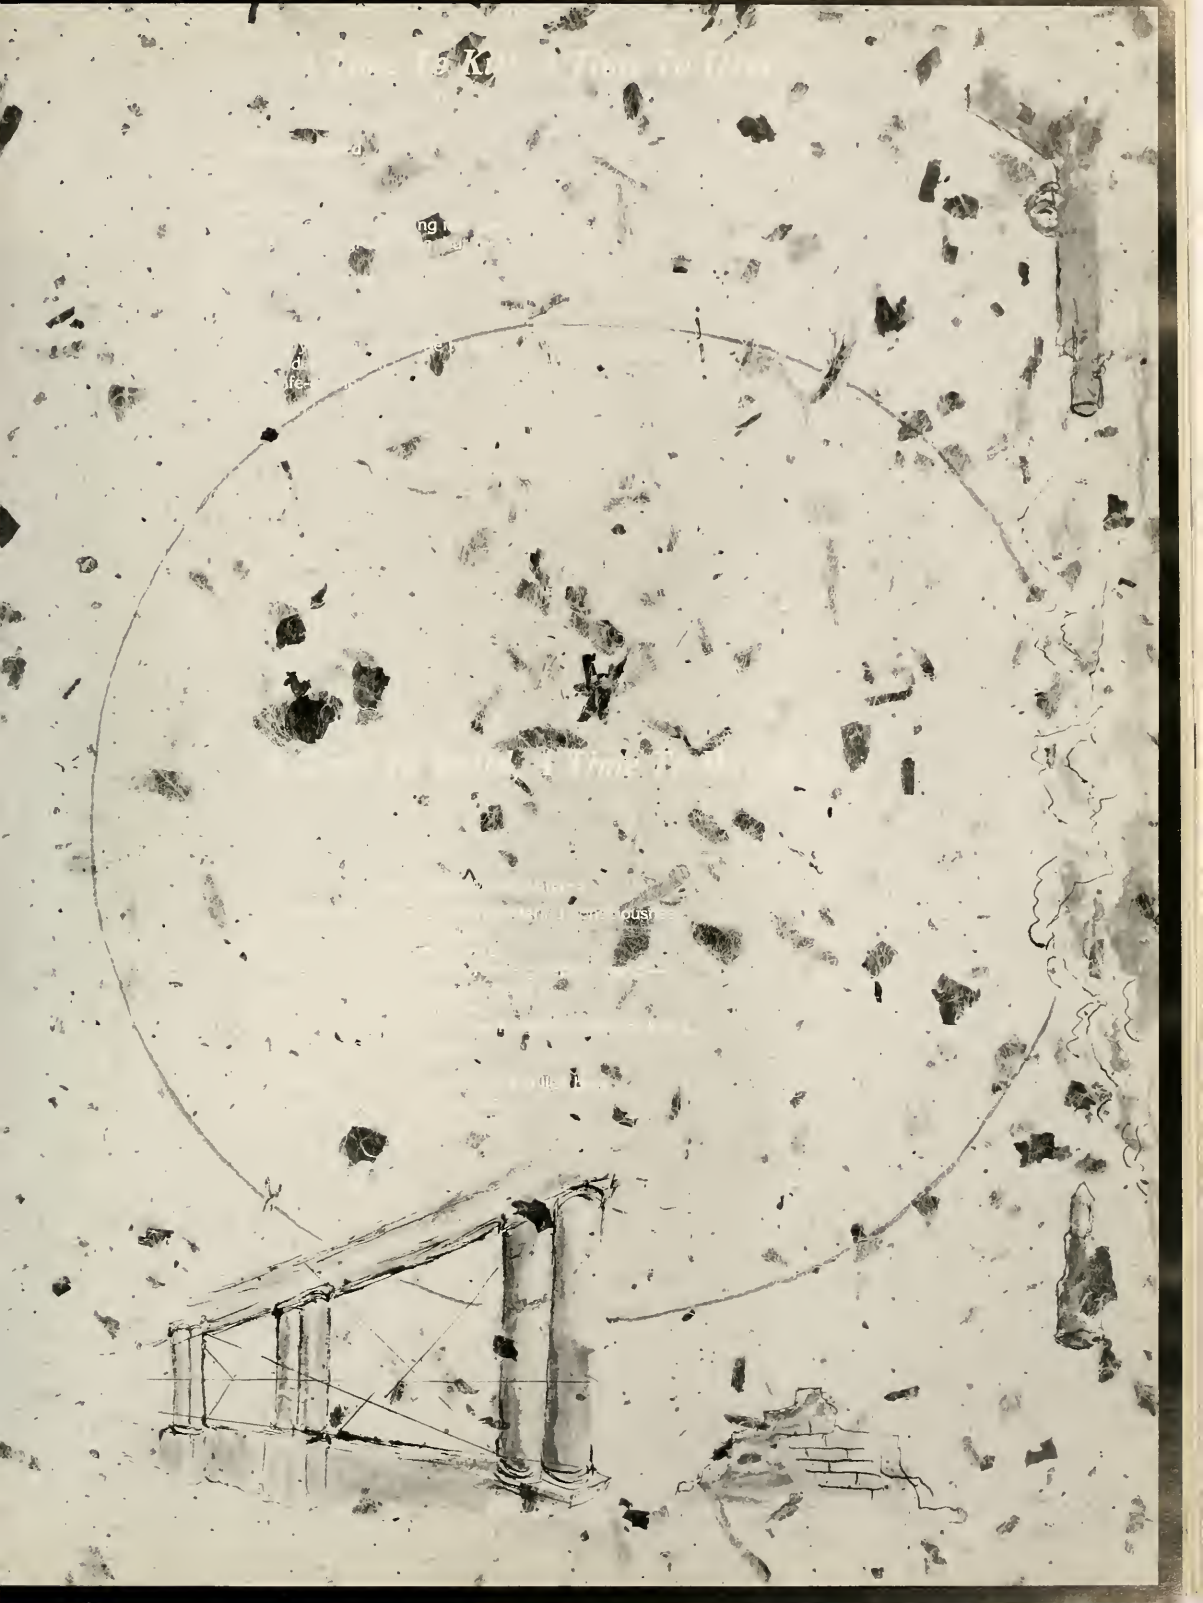
Hurls them unconcerned, killing the offender,
But then protects those bereft of the offender.
The savage stokers of foreign carnage
Breaking youth in the torn clay of youth
Leave lands in peace where love is no adage
To vulgarity and heartbroken mirth.
In this contrast man's internal width
We find our shade, and our epigraph.

Blast!



A Time To Weep, A Time To Laugh

"Requiem"

A requiem sounding in somber stealth,
Its living notes assuring life in death;
Haunting power and desperate regret,
Strengthening the living in guilty debt.
Mourners eye each other over the bier,
Refreshed to find themselves still viewers there;
New bonds grow unasked through shocked bereavement,
Friendships form because this frail interment.
I think to the future — of moments past,
Longing known company, loving repast;
Life is so unsure, fate so surprising,
One companion needs to share the passing.
Grant me beauty's understanding visage,
Loving security for earthly passage.

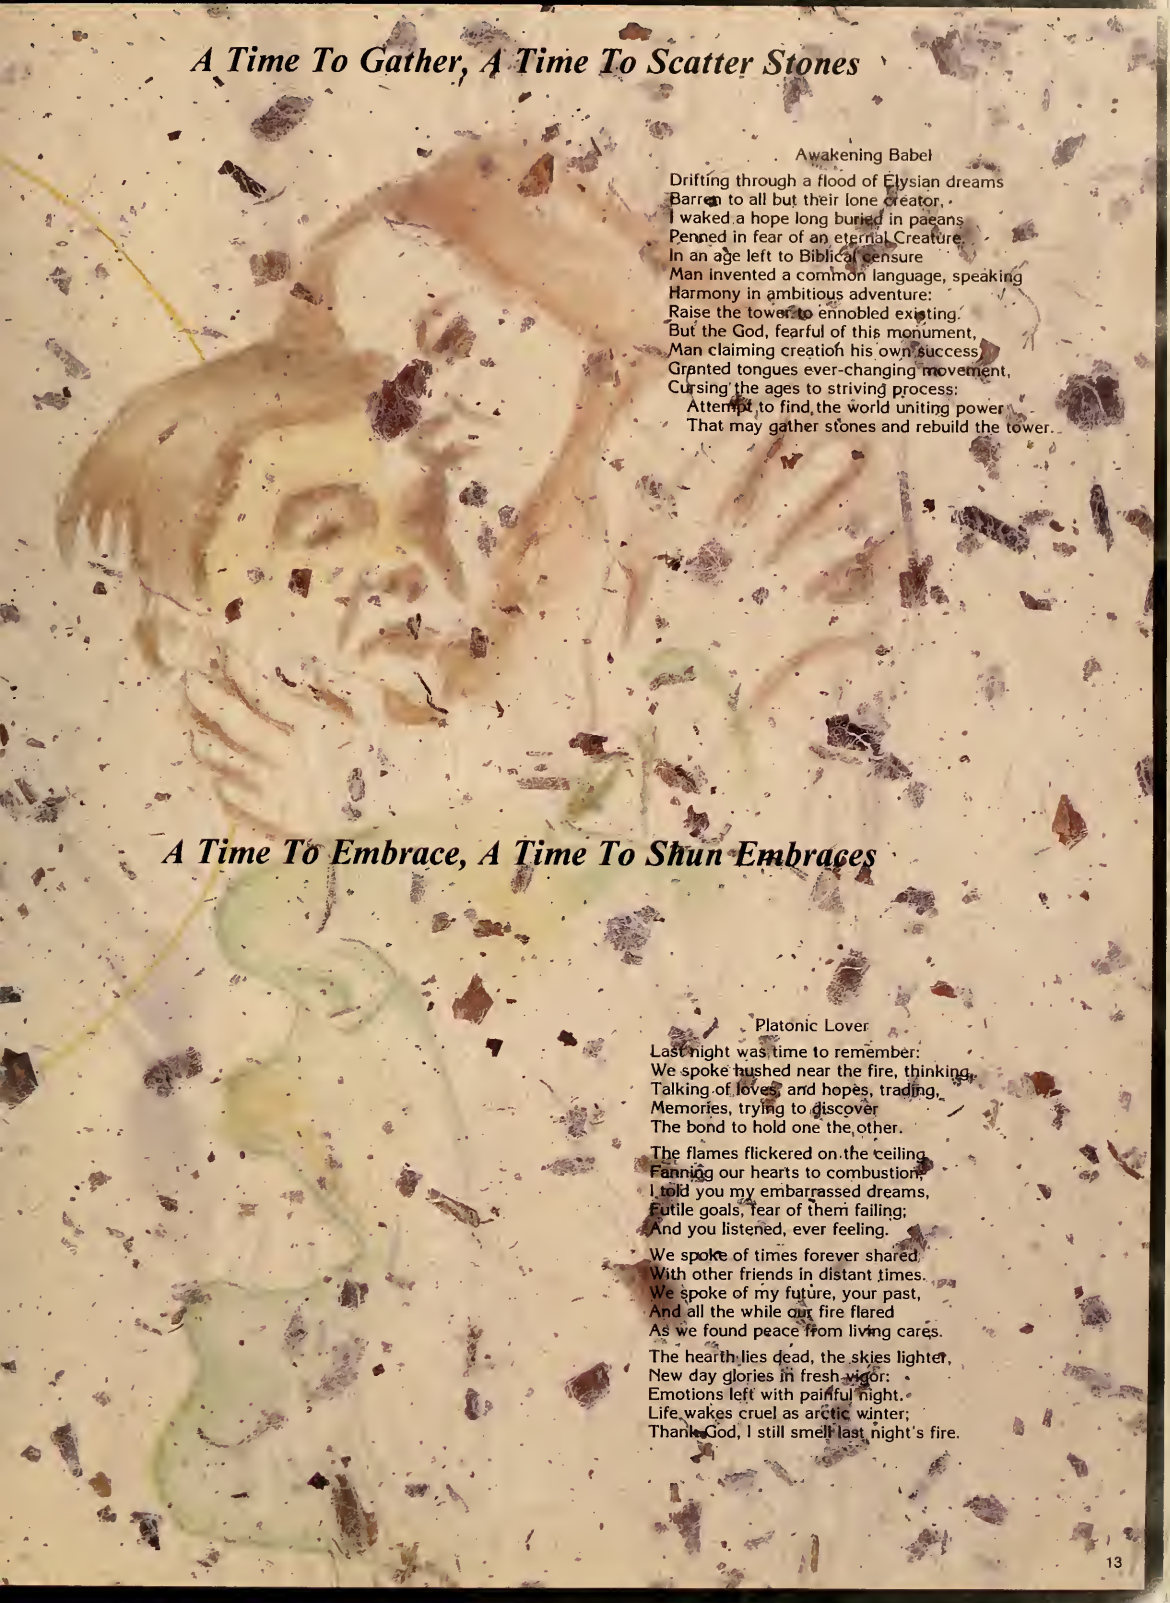
A Time To Wail, A Time To Dance

"Post Memories"

She's dead now.
They put her memory to rest
Just a short while ago.

She would not have liked it.
All that fuss
And the flowing tears of friends,
Would have made her piteous enough
To change places
And save them the agony of her loss.

She needn't worry.
They will smile again soon; tonight's
The Macy's SALE.



A Time To Gather, A Time To Scatter Stones

Awakening Babel

Drifting through a flood of Elysian dreams
Barren to all but their lone creator,
I waked a hope long buried in paeans
Penned in fear of an eternal Creature.
In an age left to Biblical censure
Man invented a common language, speaking
Harmony in ambitious adventure:
Raise the tower to ennobled existing.
But the God, fearful of this monument,
Man claiming creation his own success,
Granted tongues ever-changing movement,
Cursing the ages to striving process:
Attempt to find the world uniting power
That may gather stones and rebuild the tower.

A Time To Embrace, A Time To Shun Embraces

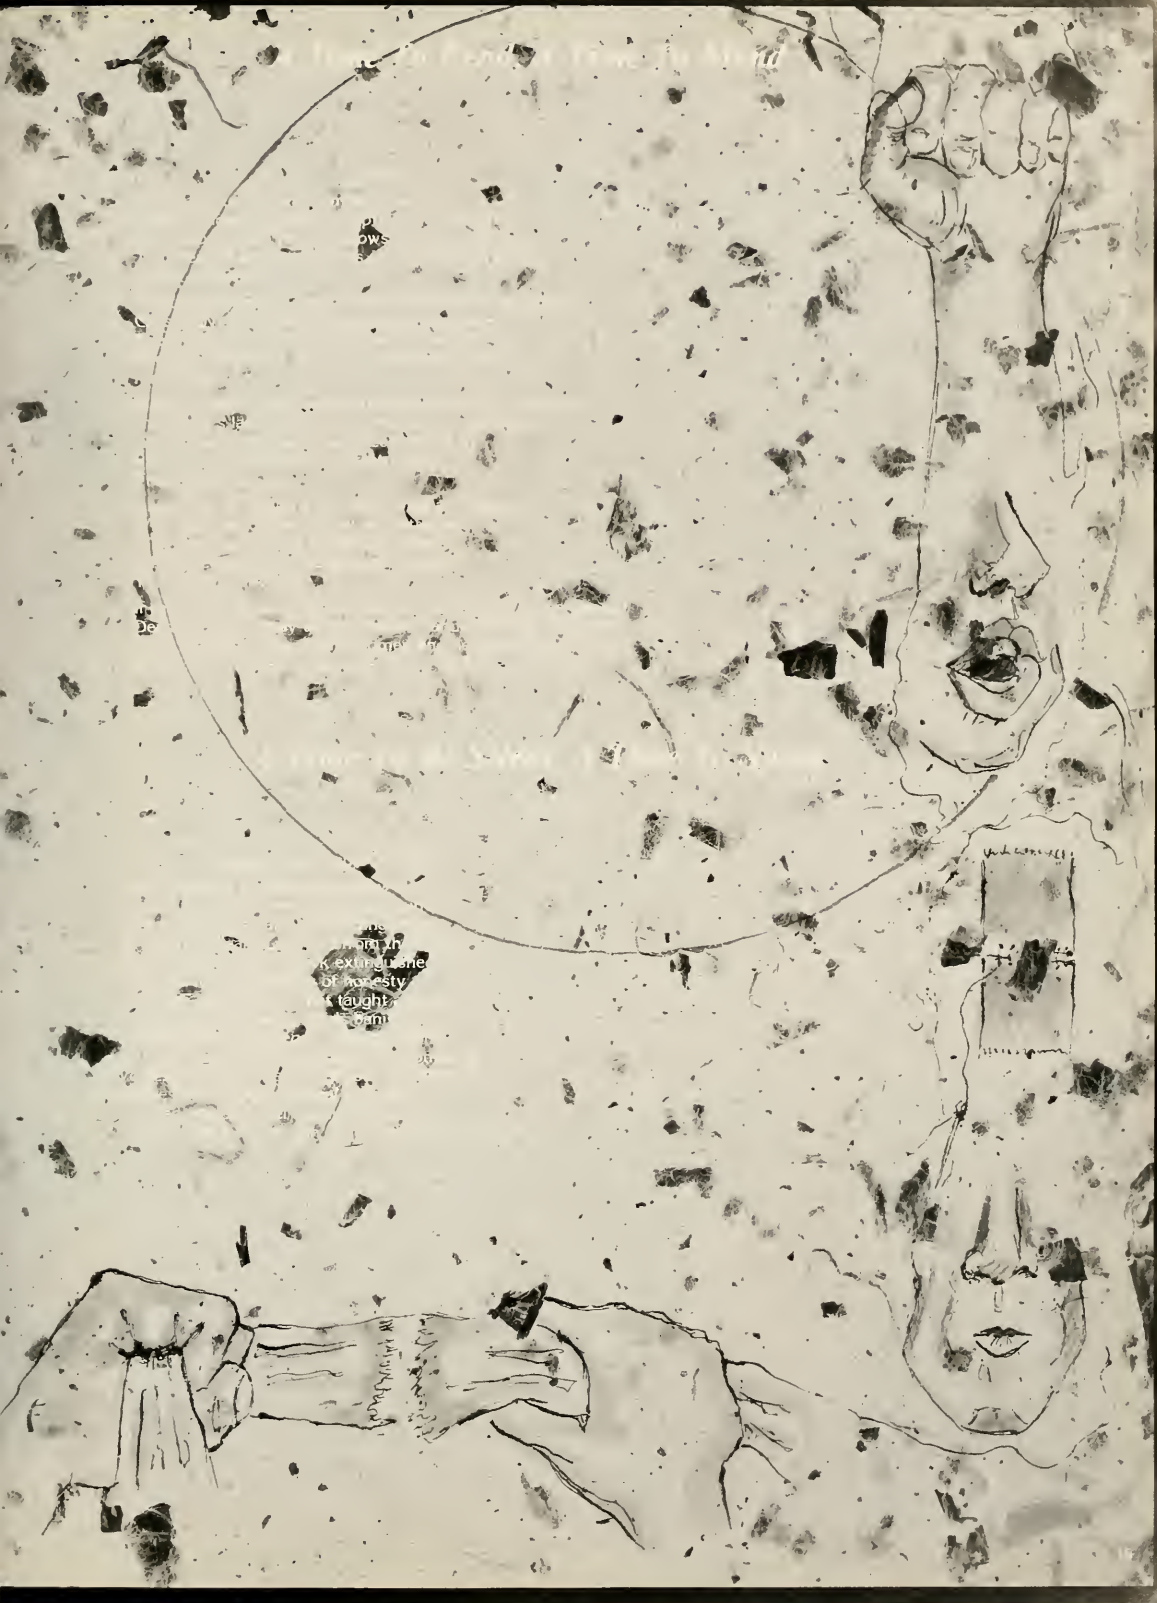
Platonic Lover

Last night was time to remember:
We spoke hushed near the fire, thinking,
Talking of loves, and hopes, trading,
Memories, trying to discover
The bond to hold one the other.

The flames flickered on the ceiling
Fanning our hearts to combustion;
I told you my embarrassed dreams,
Futile goals, fear of them failing;
And you listened, ever feeling.

We spoke of times forever shared
With other friends in distant times.
We spoke of my future, your past,
And all the while our fire flared
As we found peace from living cares.

The hearth lies dead, the skies lighter,
New day glories in fresh vigor:
Emotions left with painful night.
Life wakes cruel as arctic winter;
Thank God, I still smell last night's fire.



A Time To Love, To Hate, Of War, Of Peace

The scream
Of a child cuts the delicate warmth;
Homes once calm, lived-in, reassuring,
Transform to desolate ruins.
Boots stamp their path in human parts
Creating chaos where none existed, and was dreaded, ordering
Figures to dig and strip,
Without feeling.
Without pity.

Murder done, they toast the numbers,
Slapping brotherly backs in beerhouse chorus.
They worked hard today, these brothers
In arms they took to babies' heads and blew uncomprehending
Brains onto mothers' faces.
Death can't hate.

* * *

Fighters who heard such rumors and succumb to blind, maddened Hate,
Break a village, halt collaboration, conquer the enemy;
accepting calmly
A noble surrender, sparing the soldiers.

* * *

Schoolboys who had one cheated the other
Disguised themselves as friends under fire.
One, sacrificed, begged freedom from the wire.
"Decorum est pro patria," he answered,
"Mori."

* * *

Two old men, content with rebuilt families,
Chat over pipes by the hearth,
Enchanting children with their scars and loves,
Old glories.
They reflect on pasts, long into mustered night
Gazing at embers, the dying of the light.
"Remember that old king, Solomon's the name,
Who could tell us how we must all look at life?
Well, there must have been something wrong in his game:
This hate, war, peace, exist in the time for love."

"This is the time because it will not last forever, these are the days to hold on to because we won't although we'll want to."

Yeshiva University / Office of the President

TO THE YESHIVA COLLEGE CLASS OF 1988

It is with the mixed feelings of genuine fondness and anticipated nostalgia that I bid you farewell as you are graduated from Yeshiva College. Your alma mater will miss you, and await your return as active and committed alumni.

You take your leave in the Hebrew year 5748, the last three numerals of which are written as tismach, "be happy." what a happy omen, and what good advice!

Maimonides teaches us that there is a difference between simchah and hollelut, authentic happiness and spurious happiness -- just rowdiness and buffoonery. My wishes for each and every one of you is that you achieve the tismach, that your lives be blessed by genuine simchah: of the heart and the mind, in plenty and in comfort, allowing you not only to build wonderful Jewish families and fine careers in the professions and business, but also to remember that the core of joy is: Talmud Torah. Remain connected to that fountain of eternal wisdom, and your lives will be genuinely happy!

Cordially yours,

NORMAN LAMM

For the 1988 Mashkid

THE NEXT 100 YEARS

by Rabbi Zevulun Charlop

One of my favorite Yerushalmi stories, which seems to have been with me as long as memory, tells about the simple and absolute Emunah - belief - of those mythic Nashim Tzidkaniot - pious women - who characterized the old Yishuv of the Holy City and who, I am sure, can still be found. The husband of one of them once innocently inquired on a Friday afternoon what they would be having for the Shabbat, and she answered: "If Heaven forfend that the Mashiach will not yet have arrived by then - But perish the thought, for he certainly will come - but, if in the remote and unlikely event that he doesn't come, G-d forbid, we'll have chicken noodle soup, Gefilte fish and chulent. But don't worry; he'll come!"

I'd been asked to address the theme, "The Next 100 Years." I'm not sure if you mean merely what lies in store for our Yeshiva in the next century - for its recent centennial observance spanned almost your entire four years of college in its multitudinous epilogues and prologues beyond the hundredth year itself - or, indeed, what does the next century hold for all of humanity. Actually, by the very nature of what we are, they may be inextricably bound up one with the other. In any event, we hope that Mashiach will be coming very soon, and our Yeshiva, no less than other Batei Medrash, as our Chazal tell us, (Megillah, 29:1) will be transported to Eretz Yisrael and reestablished there. Some of us have the conviction that all the signs point to his imminent advent. Moreover, we believe, perhaps a little bit immodestly, that our total approach to learning and life, to engagement with society about us, even as we remain ensconced in the Daled Amot of Halakhah, will surely prove to have been a chief path in the King's way.

And Rachmana Litzlan - HaShem save us - if Mashiach doesn't come as quickly as we expect, perish the thought - then we will continue to grow here as a great centrifugal power, drawing more Jews into the vortex of their faith - into the orbit of Torah - as well as contributing to the amelioration of the lot of all mankind and its moral and spiritual uplifting. At the same time, we will continue to be that sturdy bridge, intellectually connecting Torah and Mada in the oneness of HaShem and His creation, and also joining together Hacha and Hathan - Bavel and Maarava, thereby in itself quickening the coming of Mashiach - Heaven forfend, G-d forbid, perish the thought, if he doesn't come before then.

Congratulations, dear talmidim, upon your graduation, and best wishes to you on the next century.

Dear Graduates,

Your class marks the beginning of a new era in the life of Yeshiva University. Only yesterday Yeshiva celebrated the 100th anniversary of its founding.

What should this milestone mean to you as graduates of the class of 1988? Your predecessors learned the meaning of values which emphasized more than practical concerns, realities of career choices and material comforts. They learned the significance of human happiness in terms of spiritual, intellectual and cultural aspirations and fulfillment. Your task is to follow in their footsteps.

We at Yeshiva look to you to hold high the torch of Torah and Madah. You leave Yeshiva's portals well informed, devoted to Jewish living and reinforced in Jewish loyalties as a result of your intensive training in the classic literature of our people. You have received an education for life!

Jewish tradition teaches us the precept of Hakarat Hatov, meaning gratitude or thankfulness. Be thankful to your Alma Mater as you endeavor to reconcile the study of Torah and observance of mitzvot with the pursuit of a general education which is essential to the advancement of society. Gratitude is expressed not only in monetary terms; it means serving as an ambassador of good will for Yeshiva and spreading the importance of its work to people in general and to the Jewish people in particular.

In this year TaSMaH,which embodies the word Sameah (happy) we at Yeshiva rejoice in your achievements and trust that you will be equally successful in your future endeavors. Mazel-Tov!

Sincerely yours,

The boundary lines of phase transitions are significant and real, albeit sometimes invisible. Collegiate graduation is such a boundary, moving one from the study phase to the action phase.

This is not to say that an overt magical transformation takes place, a clear physical demarcation of an era. Not at all. Indeed, for most Yeshiva College graduates, difficult and taxing years of graduate study lie ahead. But a different relationship to self and community is usually introduced as one leaves College. It is a relationship which invites, even mandates, one to become a part of history even while continuing to study it. There is a stirring to participate, to become active, to do.

The hachana phase, preparing one to live Judaism and to contribute to it, is giving way to its goal, continuity of Torah and Israel, living in the embrace of Kedusha. And, facing this, the Yeshiva College graduate is suddenly aware that very very few young Jews know as much about Jews and Judaism, or care as much about Jews and Judaism, as he does. And it is suddenly clear that if there is to be effective leadership, he will have to be a part of it. If the American Jewish Community, even the world Jewish community, will survive the next 50 or 100 years, he and his colleagues will have to make the same kind of contribution that other Yeshiva College graduates made for the first 100 years of Yeshiva's dedication to hachana.

It is an awesome, even frightening responsibility and there are too few to share it. But, it is a responsibility which our graduate cannot evade - for his own sake, for the sake of his children, and for his children's children.

His Rebbeim and teachers at Yeshiva, who were so much a part of his present and whose hopes he carries into the future, wish and pray devoutly for his success, for their destinies are one.

April 14, 1988

Dear Graduates,

I congratulate you on the successful completion of your studies at Yeshiva College. You now join more that a half-century of alumni with whom you share not only an alma mater but also a commitment to the unique mission of Yeshiva University.

For four years this commitment has motviated you to pursue a rigorous duel curriculum which has challenged you to integrate traditional Torah study with what is best in Western culture.

This challenge continues beyond graduetion and your success in meeting it will be reflected in how you live your lives and pursue your careers. You are fortunate in having as models thousands of alumni who have demonstrated through their lives and careers that this challenge can be met and that the Torah u'Madda ideal retains its vitality.

And so, as you leave Yeshiva College, I wish you well and I note to you that your theme from Koheleth, Chapter III, verse 1, can be paraphrased: There are no random events in life and each of your aspirations can be realized.

Sincerely,

RABBI BENJAMIN YUDIN
DIRECTOR

One of the many Medrashim cited in conjunction with the theme of this yearbook is both fascinating and I believe appropriate as a parting message and brocha. Our rabbis tell us that one of the references of the posuk "es lacol" a time for everything" is that there was a specific time for Adam to enter Gan Eden, and a time to leave. There is an interesting similarity between the entry and exit from Gan Eden and that is in both situations man resisted. "V'yikach Hashem Elokim" and Hashem took Adam and placed him in Gan Eden, rashi tells us that it was "lokcho b'dvorim" he had to cajole and persuade him to enter Gan Eden, Adam resisted. He did not want to make the move or if you may, shoulder the responsibility of "l'ovda and lishomra."

The same resistance is found at the end of ch.3 of Breishis where "v'yguesh es la-adam - G-d had to expell Adam" who did not want to leave. Similarly, when Noach and the remnant of civilization finally came to a rest one might imagine that Noach would be the first one to run out of the ark, but we find just the reverse "Tzah min Hatavah" exit from the ark is the divine decree, build a new world a better society. Noach too resisted change.

The graduates, who have been preparing themselves for the past four years to emerge and take their place in the community, and as Adam and Noach might feel a little hesitant about leaving, to them I have the following advice. Don't leave the Yeshiva! The special relationship and closeness you might have developed with a particular rebbe don't lose it. It will get even more special as the years go on. While distance and careers and other factors might make it difficult to learn at the Yeshiva bais ha-medrash, wherever you will be; you're being Kovea eidim l'torah will keep you in touch with the Yeshiva. Finally, you're implementing that which has been imparted to you, you're Kedushifying your environment, involvement with chesed and support of Eretz Yieroel will be the best way of taking Yeshiva with you and through your noble efforts being credit to yourselves, your families and Yeshiva.

Mazal-Tov and may your efforts be crowned with much hatzlacha.

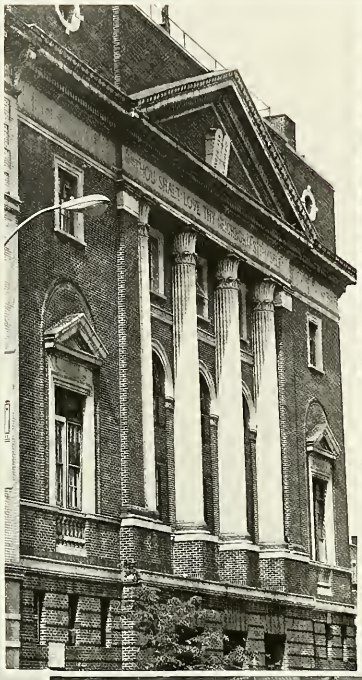
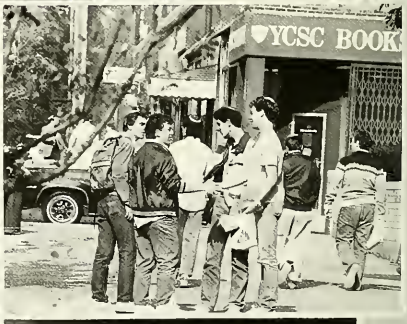
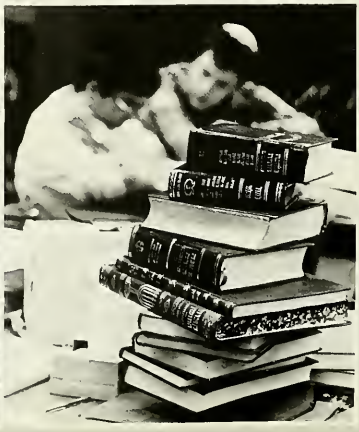
STUDENT LIFE

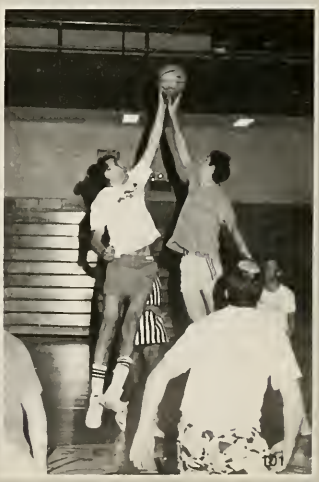






Y.U. ATHLETICS

1987-1988



At the 15:25 mark of the first half of the second to last game of the season, Lior Hod swished a baseline jumper over two Vassar defenders to break Harvey Scheff's Y.U. career scoring record of 1500 points. The packed MSAC crowd went bonkers, giving Lior a five-minute standing ovation as he hugged everyone in sight. But while it was certainly the most exciting moment of the season, Lior's record-breaking shot was only one of the milestones reached during the course of the season. Coach Halpert won his 100th game, the MACs played their 1000th game, Ayal Hod scored his 1000th point, and yes, it did seem as though there were 1000 MACs' fans on hand as the team made its first-ever post-season tournament appearance.

But regardless of the tournament, when one looks back over the course of the season, one sees what a difference one year makes. Coaches Halpert and Gurock showed what they could do with one more year of experience (multiplied by seven) as the MACs not only improved on last year's 10-14 record, but finished the regular season with a 16-8 record, tying the team mark for victories in a season.

Each non-starting senior was a role player who knew his place in Coach Halpert's offense. Donny Furer, a second-year player, was the defensive catalyst and the inspiration for the NCAA's "change on the fly" rule. Hesh Muehlgay played just one year on the team and had the best points/minutes played in team history. Marty Shlakman provided the MACs with stability. He created the airborn defense and, importantly, was the team's backup inbounder. Zev Weiss was the bravest Maccabee as he often resembled a pitch-o-matic during practice. It got to the point where he would go anyplace to avoid practice, including London where he stayed for four months.

For two years the starting center was Benjy Reichel, whose bulk and height made him a top rebounder and a scoring threat near the basket. It also made him the team's inbounder after a basket, causing a number of hairy moments. Jeff Baum, the starting point guard, was sometimes unsure of his role on the team. But controlling the ball and hawking the ball on defense are two things that come naturally to Jeff, whose steals, length-of-the-court layups, occasional outside shot, and love of the game made him one of the most popular MACs.

And what else could be said of Lior? A true competitor, he was the backbone of the MACs over the past two years as he finished his four year Y.U. career with 1545 points, and was amongst the leaders in career assists and blocked shots. Whether jump-shooting or dunking, Lior added style to the MACs offense and made Y.U. Basketball the excitement that it is.

TENNIS

With only four returning players from last year's 2-5 squad, the Y.U. Tennis team seemed to be facing a rebuilding year when it assembled at the Binghamton Racquet Club in September. However, under the tutelage of first year coach, Mickey Aboff, the young MICS rallied behind the leadership of Senior captains Jon Bandler and Robbie Wind and posted a 7-2 record which included a stunning victory over Division II Brooklyn College.

The only blemishes on the team's record occurred on cold, blustery days in Hoboken and Newark where I.A.C. rivals Stevens Tech and New Jersey Institute of Technology defeated the MICS in hard fought contests. The MICS finished in third place in the league with a 3-2 record.

The team's exceptional play in singles' competition was most responsible for this year's strong record. Bandler's perfect 7-0 record won him a place on the I.A.C. All Star Team and raised his three-year Y.U. record to 12-4. Wind also had a winning record, and along with Bandler inspired great effort and concentration on the part of the other team members whose performance seemed more like that of seasoned veterans than the first year players they were.

The team honored its coach and friend by changing its name from the Tennis MACS to the MICS, and also decided that the school's name as it appeared on the tennis schedule each year was not as exciting as those of opponents. Therefore, beginning with the 1988-89 squad, the MICS will be representing Western Yeshiva State Institute of Technology.

FENCING

The Taubermen reflect with pride on their '87-'88 season. With a quantitatively heavier and qualitatively tougher schedule than ever before, with an appreciated outpouring of home fan support, and with our invited participation in the first annual National Division III Championship, fencing continues to enjoy its renaissance at Y.U. Under the professional coaching and able leadership of Head Coach Arnie Messing and Assistant Coach Pete Rosas, the team performed quite respectably and achieved a name in Division III fencing. Our grim, hardened, veteran fencers attacked with skilled abandon, dissolving all remnants of our "pushover" reputation of the past.

Sabre weapon leader Dov Schwell ran his record to 48-50 overall and a fifth-place award in the post-season championship. He was helped by Nachum Goldberg's "confuse 'em, then kill 'em" philosophy. Ross Breen led the epee squad to its 36-63 record and a fifth-place tournament finish with his three undefeated matches and 20-13 record. Epee weapon leader Eric Zaiman, "Lord of the Psych-Ups", left a smoldering trail of "haka-taka" cheers in every enemy gym this side of the Mississippi. The foil squad topped the rest with its incredible 51-48 record and its fourth place finish in the tournament. Team captain, Zalman Levine, bounced his way to a 23-9 seasonal record including four undefeated matches, and together with next year's captain, Robbie Zimmerman, and fellow senior, Zev Goldblatt, led the foilmen to a dynamically agile year.

Dear Class of 1988,

It is on the eve of our college graduation that we the editors take the time to address you our fellow graduates in this 1988 edition of the MASMID. As you read through these pages we hope you will enjoy reliving your college days at Yeshiva University. They are full of memories of the times we have shared here.

It is for all of our benefits that we have spent an arduous and often tedious year compiling these most precious memories of the best times of our lives. We hope that you find in these pages the most extraordinary and entertaining aspects of our college careers. Each time you take this yearbook down from the shelf for Pesach dusting, we hope you will browse through it and be inspired to chuckle and remember these most fantastic years of our lives.

May this year of 5748 — T'SMACH be the beginning of a life full of health, happiness and the fulfillment of all your dreams.

MAZEL TOV and HATZLACHA RABBAH!!

This semester, our textbook is the new hardcover Bloomingdales catalog.

Won't you come out of the closet already!

2.94 and a 32 on the LSAT's? Harvard shouldn't be out of the question.

Officer, is this some kind of Joke?!

He's been like that for 4 years now he's graduating!

4 Million? You tell Mr. Syms it takes at least 6 to name a school — and thats final!
